Get four of Susan Gregersen's prepper/disaster fiction books in one collection. That's four great books for the price of three! Included in this collection is: "A Tale of Two Preppers" - Jeff and Jeannie are new to the idea of preparedness and have just begun storing food and other supplies when disaster hits. Will the preps they were able to make be enough to save their lives? "Over the River and Through the Woods" - Lonnie and Pete lose their jobs and are about to lose their home. Their children don't know what their future holds as the economy brings the world down around them. Lonnie's Grandmother moves in with them to save expenses, and then the whole family leaves the city to start a new life on a farm owned by Pete's parents. Light-hearted in the face of trials, this is a heartwarming story.

"Back Across the Pond" - Carl and Darlene cross the 'pond' from the United States to Germany to visit Carl's parents, who work for the US military. Chaos breaks loose just as Carl and Darlene's plane lands and they flee through the streets of Hamburg. At the harbor they talk their way aboard a ship where they offer to fill in for crew members that have fled. The adventure doesn't end as the ship leaves port, fleeing to Denmark to refuel, then across the pond to America.

Pirates and storms try to waylay them, and help comes from unexpected directions, including a dogsled musher and a ranch owner, as they make their way to their home in the western United States. "Twilight in the Desert" - A two part story of a couple caught up in the unexplained disappearance of people... all the people. Everything else remains... the people have just all vanished. When the people reappear they find themselves living in the past... about 1,000 years in the past.

When they're finally reunited with their family, their children don't believe their tale...until a grandson discovers an old Indian spear and other objects in their camper.
