Foreword These recollections are drawn from memory and stories told to me when young. I hope those who find mistakes and discrepancies will understand and forgive. Reliving my early years has given me great pleasure, and I have tried to capture incidents that were important to me at the time.

The present generation might think we were frivolous and pleasure seeking, but in fact we worked hard at our sports and pleasures and our few charitable works. However, I do realise now that the thoughtness and lack of understanding of the well-off people of that day, must have contributed in many ways to the problems and troubles of present times.
