Leigh Wells is a woman with a plan. She's a paralegal, finally getting the responsibilities and contacts to fulfill her ambition of going to law school. But long term boyfriend Carl has other ideas - he wants to travel the world for a year. So she gives him an ultimatum - stay and wait until she's ready, or go without her. He packs up and leaves. Leigh goes to confide in her best friend Harrison. But with emotions and feelings running high, she soon starts to look at him in a more romantic way... Again! Which leaves Leigh feels super guilty. Harrison moved in with her and her parents aged 10, when his parents died in a car crash. They're supposed to be like sister and brother, but Leigh's never felt that way. And now with passion blossoming between them, she can't keep denying how she feels. Will everything backfire for them as they try to redefine their relationship? Or can they somehow make it work and find the happily ever after they deserve? Find out in this pulse-racing yet emotional romance by Ellie Etienne of BWWM Club.
