Farah Dent is ready for college, but her heart might not be... When Chris Lawson encourages his girlfriend Farah to apply to her dream university, she doesn't believe she'll ever get in. But when her acceptance letter comes in the mail, she feels forced to say goodbye to her high school love, since she doesn't believe in long-distance relationships. By vowing to never let him in again, she attempts to move on with her life. Little does Farah know, it's impossible to truly say goodbye to love... When she comes home to their small town, Chris ends up being thrust back into her life, maybe even permanently. Farah's best friend Cassie is marrying Chris' best friend Nate, bringing the pair closer than ever as members of the bridal party. Kept at arm's length, Chris is still in her heart... Farah tries to deny her constant attraction to her ex-boyfriend, but Chris is still the handsome boy she fell in love with so many years ago. It doesn't help that they see each other every day in the photography class she signed up for.

Chris might be different and cold toward her now, but she's inexplicably drawn to him like no other man she's ever met, no matter how much it hurts to revisit what they lost. The heart remembers what the mind is determined to forget... Despite their valiant efforts at distance, the couple could have another shot at love.

But is Farah the only one feeling the magnetic force pulling her back to Chris? Together they could be...perfectly imperfect.
