Lyssa Merrick is happy with her life leading wildlife and wilderness expeditions through the upper Adirondacks. She's proud of the business she built on her own, and happy with the freedom to run whenever she feels the need. Wolfe Reardon, as leader of his pack, wants to create a wildlife sanctuary to allow certain species to repopulate the area, as well as to provide a safer environment for his pack without fear of hunters. When Wolfe walks into Wilderness Wanderings, he knows he's met his mate.

Lyssa, unfortunately, is not so happy to discover her destined mate is a wolf.

Long ago she swore she would never be a member of a pack again and she's sure nothing he says will change that.
