Detective Emma Sharp just transferred to Carrington County Sheriff's Office and is assigned her first "real" case. Nothing about the body that was found behind Den, a local bar, feels right. When her partner tries his best to handle it himself she goes behind his back to investigate. There's only one person in her way, Kale Blackwood, owner of Den. He's rude, arrogant, frustrating, and absolutely drool worthy. After their first run in she can't seem to get away from him, he's always there. When secrets are revealed Emma feels herself changing. She feels a connection to Kale that she can't explain. With a killer still on the loose and dealing with Kale's possessiveness, she's not sure she can handle what comes next.
