It is summer in New Orleans, and Jackson Waters has just stepped from the gates of Parish Prison after five years. No one waits to greet him. He's been disowned by his family and imprisoned for a crime he may -- or may not -- have committed.

To the rescue comes Garland Lafon, a wealthy Creole banker, who takes Jack into his home and his business. Lafon has two beautiful daughters, the lush Corinne and quiet Rosalie. Inside the beautiful house in the French Quarter, Jackson Waters finds his redemption -- and true love where he least expects it.
