Silas stole Ezra's future, freedom, and spirit with soft words and sympathy. Fabian forged him into a soul demonic toy who considered humans nothing but prey.

It had taken a century, plus the sweet trust and love of a human, to prove there was more to life than existing.

The supernatural council gave him an ultimatum. Spend another year in Fabian's cellar or give evidence by experiencing that hellish decade again, via magic? A day to win his freedom, to prove Fabian's guilt and make the vampire suffer as he had done. A day to damn Silas. Can Ezra survive the vampires again, condemn his first love for the sake of his second? 4th part of Incubus, an m/m novella series. Graphic material with non-consent themes. NOT a standalone.
