Beltaine and Kalan have completed the first part of their mission. They've retrieved the book for the Devil and things should be easier for them, but the situation is getting worse. The Veil continues to rip and now the Devil's immortal life is at stake. Beltaine never thought she'd have to save the ruler of Hell from a mortal. She also never believed she'd fall in love with anyone--angel or mortal--but here she is hoping God will be kind to her just once. Kalan has learned a lot after spending time with Beltaine. The most important on: everything is not as it seems. Beltaine has opened his eyes to the seamier side of the world, but he's in for the shock of his life. Will love keep this demon and her angel alive? Is their strength enough to save Hell when Heaven comes to call?
