When Madeline Stillwater agrees to volunteer for the Mind Bank project, she does so thinking her services will never be required. But when technology accelerates and the Psychology Department of her university begins "collecting" volunteers' fantasies, she faces a dilemma. Her colleague and good friend Marcus Dimitri assures her that her sadomasochistic fantasies are perfectly normal, but Maddy is terrified that her former boyfriend - a psychologist eager to work on the project - will access her collection and learn the truth she tried to deny when they were together. Will Maddy's secret be safe? And where will she turn when her fantasies come crashing into the only reality she knows?
