Most girls see the dope boys as a way up. The majority have their little hearts set on marrying a boss so that they would be set for the rest of their lives. Not Andrea “Drea” Kane-Smith. She fell in love with Arsenio “Nio” Smith because of the façade he put on as the Robin Hood of the projects.

Five years of marriage things had drastically changed. Especially when her best friend Dante— who just so happens to be Arsenio’s brother— pops up out of the blue to reclaim all of what he lost.

Dante steps in the middle of Nio and Drea’s shambles of love and unveils lie after lie and the dangerous truth behind why Nio even approached Drea in the first place. Along with it come an explanation of how and why Dante disappeared. It seems as though Nio has had a hand in everything from the very moment he met all of his goons— Domentio “Smalls”, Lorenzo “City”, and Emilio “Flame”.

Not only had he toyed with the what could’ve been between Dante and Drea, but he played puppet master with his entire crew, along with their wives.

Find out how this drama unfolds, and see if Dante can spit out the truth and remove the cloak from everyone’s eyes before it's too late. Besides, every last one of them has a target on their backs and foreheads because of Nio and his deceit.
