Chavez L Brown returns with his follow up to “Nice Guys Don’t Finish Last”. This go around we follow Nico to the concrete jungle, New York City where he tries to put his failed relationship and suicide attempts behind him to start over with his best friend Deja. Deja is a gorgeous model with the skills and attitude to rival any of her competitors but without representation and insecurities to match, her modeling career is threatened to fail before it truly takes off. Deja struggles with having her best friend move in with her, as well as being a new wife to her husband Bobby. After hiring a publicist to assist in taking her career to the next level, Deja starts to realize that maybe the perfect life she dreamed of isn’t so perfect. Her friendship and relationship are put to the test and she soon discovers that sometimes its best to love someone from a distance.
