Esmie works as a marketing consultant for a company in Glasgow. But when she's given the offer of a vintage tea dress and fabric shop on the West Coast of Scotland, she decides to try and make a new life for herself in the little coastal town. Using her marketing skills she tries to make the vintage shop with its floral fabrics and furniture profitable, while building a new life away from the city. It's an old fashioned shop and a house combined, with one of the most beautiful cottage gardens Esmie has ever seen, filled with sweet peas, pink bluebells, pansies and tea roses. Will Esmie the city girl find romance and love here? Is local hotel owner, Grant, the man for her? Or perhaps Angus who owns the tearoom? And how much trouble will Esmie cause with her meddling and mischief during the long hot summer? Find out in this exciting new romance set in summer in the West Coast of Scotland.
