As war begins to ravage the fair continent of Lotheria, spymaster Theresa is trailing the usurper King as he crosses the globe.

Her travels take her to Gannameade; the hot, dangerous continent of spice and blood. In the capital city of Syran, foreigners are murdered in the streets and corruption infects the upper ranks. As a deadly sickness works its way toward the capital, Theresa is desperate to find out why the King has travelled to such a perilous nation. But her thoughts are far from Lotheria when she saves the life of the young Queen and the heir to the throne, Prince Fayyaad. When Theresa is taken to the palace as a reward, she can't possibly know what is to follow. Amidst a crescendo of death and violence, she comes to realise one thing.

Love can bloom in even the most poisonous of places. The first book in the spin-off series from Aprille Legacy's Soul Trilogy.
