He was everything a decent woman should avoid - and everything a real woman could not resist! From the moment she laid eyes on him, beautiful Hannah Blaine knew dark, handsome Christian Falconer spelled danger. Though he could offer the impoverished schoolmistress vast wealth, she scorned the arrogant, virile gentleman with his frank, masculine stare...until her body succumbed to his overpowering sexual charms. From a Virginia plantation to a California backwoods ranch and freewheeling, law San Francisco, Hannah struggled to escape her obsession, but not even the frenzy of the Spanish-American War could make her forget. Only when destiny swept them both to the Philippines in a raging typhoon did she realize that this man must possess her forever...their passions entwined in a trembling ecstasy of desire.
