Dream and Drake part on bad terms. Dream leaves the precinct with a heavy heart. Drake tells her he is giving her some space, but Dream has no intentions of taking a break from him. She is ready to reconcile things between them that night so that they can be happy in the morning. All she wants to do is get Drake back and she's willing to fight for him. After another altercation with Channa, Drake's wife, Dream realizes that her relationship with Drake is not the fairytale life that she thinks it is.

Winning Drake back will not be as easy. Channa is a permanent fixture in his life. She will not allow Dream to step into the picture and steal Drake away without a fight. In fact, she's willing to kill for him. If Dream doesn't get out of her way, she will attack. Dream will be a distant memory if it is left up to Channa. Not only is Channa a beautiful bombshell, she is Drake's trap queen too. There is nothing that Channa won't do for her man, as long as he chooses her. If he decides to pursue Dream, Channa will step her game up and show her other side. She can be vindictive, secretive, and scandalous if need be. Drake is stuck in between two women. Channa, who is his past and Dream, who is his future. He knows who he wants to be with, but life doesn't allow him time to figure things out.

The beef in the streets is brewing. Before he knows it, he is in a world of chaos. His businesses are under attack and his family is under fire. Bullets are being hailed everywhere. For the first time in Drake's life, he fails. Now, he doesn't know if he should tell The Cartel or not. Breeze has no idea that Bey is kidnapped. She is missing and no one is looking for her because she has a habit of disappearing. Breeze thinks that she is still angry with him and she doesn't want to be bothered. He tries to call her several times and it is going straight to voicemail. After Dream is hurt badly, he tries to look for her, but his pride and hot-headed way of thinking won't allow him to search too long. He's convinced that she's moved on and he's determined to do the same. Yolo is sick and tired of trying to earn his respect from Breeze. He decides to take things to the next level when he finds out The Cartel is watching his every move. This unexpected decision causes him to isolate himself from his crew. When they go their separate ways, his team goes rogue. The plan that Yolo has in place is null and void. Now that they are out of his control, they want it all and they will do anything to get it.

The setup is real.

Shots are fired and people die.

Will Dream and Drake end up together like they planned? Or will the chaos surrounding them prevent their love from blossoming?
