As they waddle like penguins, scuttle like crabs, stomp like elephants, and wriggle like worms, this menagerie of energetic toddlers exercise their bodies -- as well as their imaginations. Of course, readers are invited to join in the fun of Toddlerobics and the discovery of all the wonderful ways their bodies can move. Zita Newcome's active wordplay and vibrant illustrations are an invitation to celebrate the joys of waddling, scuttling, stomping, and wriggling along.
